Merry-Go-Round 'King of Swat' Would Be Happy Over Babe Ruth Kids' League

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON-The Babe was at my side the other day. I went to Washington for the Babe Ruth League World Series-teams of kids 13 to 15 from every part of the country-and when they wern't playing baseball, they were looking in on their congressmen and senators and visiting the shrines of our magnificent capital. They were growing up.

Wherever we went, I felt the Babe was looking over my shoulder and listening in. Kids were his dish. We dropped in on Senator Robert Hendrickson, chairman of the subcommittee on juvenile delinquency. There's nothing phony about the senator's interest in the subject. He's a grandfather 11 times and he should know about children's problems.

He also knows there's no special cure-all for juvenile delinquency. He idolized the Babe and knew his background. Baseball helped "The Babe" as it is helping thousands of kids in organized baseball programs today-kids who are restless and burning up with unspent energy.

We visited Senator Hennings of the same committee. "The Babe came of a broken home," he said, "but it didn't break him. How the Babe would hit 'em in Sportsman's Park, St. Louis! That must have been his favorite ball park." The senator gave a most inspiring talk to the group of youngsters from Joplin, Mo. I am sure they will remember the sage remarks as long as they live. Senator Hennings was a track star at Cornell - Senator Hendrickson played high school baseball, and Senator Kefauver played both baseball and football.

There were kids from Jackson, Tenn., and they were greeted by Senator Kefauver, also of the committee.

"I'm sure the Babe got his thrills, even while he was under 16, on the ball field instead of a dimly lit street corner," Kefauver told them. "You don't get into trouble on the ball field."

Senator William Langer of the juvenile delinquency committee told me there is a higher rate increase in rural areas today than in our cities. This will surprise many as it did me.

One thing stands out in my mind with the Juvenile Delinquency Committee senators. They are trying to reverse a disgraceful national trend. By 1960, unless that trend is reversed, 1,600,000 youngsters each year will be in trouble with the law. America cannot afford to lose the good citizenship of these boys.

The Babe Had Tough Start

I wonder how many kids in America today know anything more about Babe Ruth than that he symbolized the home run?

The Babe meant much more than that to an older generation in his glory years-a big, goodnatured orphan who learned to play ball at St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore.

What he stood for then, in what we have come to know as the golden age, was a blessed land of opportunity. Baseball made the Babe, and the Babe in turn made baseball.

Like so many kids out of broken homes, the Babe might have got into trouble, real trouble, but for the guidance and understanding of the brothers of St. Mary's. He owed much to Brother Mattias, and to the Brothers Paul, Albert, and

They taught him the moral values; they gave him religious training. They encouraged him to play ball in his free hours. He was not a good student, but he learned to distinguish between the good and the bad, and by the time he was 19 he was ready to make his way in professional baseball.

I don't know how old the Babe was when he set his mind in the right direction, but I'd guess it was under 16. That's why I'm so happy to have the Babe's name perpetuated by the Babe Ruth League, sponsored by the Coca-Cola Company, for those vital years of adolescent development. They get to play ball in an organized way; they get good coaching, and most of all they don't ever get to feel they're unwanted.

These were the elements the Babe remembered of his years at St. Mary's. He would tell me of the kids he had left behind. He often went back there, but most of those kids were no longer there. Still, he felt better for it. Popular With Kids

The Babe's upbringing made his act so natural when he was around kids, they just happened to like him as he liked them. It wasn't just a case of putting his autograph to a scrap of paper or a scorecard or a baseball. He felt cleaner after a time with the kids. He never forgot he was once one of them.

The Babe told me a story of a little miracle in Tampa, Fla. The Yankees had played an exhibition that afternoon, and they were jogging to their bus behind the right field stands. A car was parked nearby, and seated in the front seat was a hunched-up kid with an adult beside him. The Babe glanced at the wasted kid, and he waved and yelled, "Hi-ya, kid!" Then he thought no more of it, but the greeting had a remarkable effect on the boy. He stood up and called something back.

Other Yankees and sports writer Fred Lieb followed in the Babe's path and they noticed the boy's father shedding a tear. The man was overwhelmed. He kept saying over and over, "By boy stood up, he stood up. It's the first time in two years. My boy stood up."

There was something inspiring about the Babe, and yet the problem of delinquency could easily have overwhelmed him if he hadn't been steered right. I think too much stress-too many headlines-on the destructive side have hurt the kids. Certainly the scare headlines had to be used. Communities had to be made aware of the problem. But now I say, let's bury those headlines. In one way they multiply the problem, make phony heroes of more kids. Let's tell them of the good thinks the kids do. And let's keep them on the ball field where they won't get into trouble.

Though there is no cure for juvenile delinquency, the more playing fields we have, the fewer delinquents well have, I'm sure.

Milk is one of the oldest known foods. Records exist of cows being milked in 9000 B. C., and Sanskrit writings 6000 years old tell how milk was one of the most essential of all foods.

Who Is Confused?

By Bruce Biossat

Senator Jenner of Indiana recently came up with one of his more puzzling speeches on the Senate floor. In one breath he said a "left-wing collectivist elite" still holds power within the government, and in another he said he could not ask for a "better team" than President Eisenhower and his top defense men.

Jenner told the Senate the left-wing clique is composed of holdovers from previous administrations. He said these people have developed an "inner steering group" which is free of control by Congress, the President and the courts. He added:

"It has dominated American foreign and military policy through its skill in manipulating laws, directives, committees, conference reports, and briefing sessions."

Now Jenner's Internal Security Committee put out a voluminous report on Communist infiltration which used language like that. But in this new speech the senator is not talking of the past, but the present.

He is saying that this group of "left-wingers" exists today in government, and is so powerful that nobody can do anything about it.

Certainly few men would be so rash as to argue there are no Communists, no subversives, no moderate left-wingers anywhere in government today. To assume that would to suggest, on the one hand, that our Red enemies are not very resourceful, and on the other that there is not much range of political opinion in America.

Yet it is something else to state flatly that these people "dominate" American policy. That is something which cannot simply be asserted but must be proved. Jenner has offered no shadow of proof. Furthermore, he has named no names. Who are these dangerous, powerful

If Jenner can name them, and if they do have the power he contends, how then can he have any confidence in Mr. Eisenhower and his team?

For the import of his charges is that the "leftwing elite" has stolen power from somebody, including the President. A Chief Executive and an administration which allowed this to happen could hardly be deserving of much favor, either from Congress or the American people.

Actually, the senator's praise of the Eisenhower team is a left-handed compliment, since he can harly believe it is anybody's business but the President's to get rid of "holdovers" from previous regimes.

But unless Jenner turns up some evidence to support his charges, neither Mr. Eisenhower nor anyone else is likely to pay any attention to them. Strong words merely sound silly when nothing is offered to back them up.

It's Your Fault If The Gang Takes Over Your Home

By Ruth Millett

A mother of three school-age children complains that the neighborhood children "live" at

She says she is fed up with having them walk into her house without knocking, using the living room for a gymnasium, taking over the tele-

She knows they could never get away with acting in their own homes the way they do in hers, and wonders why their mothers don't teach them how to behave away from home.

It seems to me that the woman herself is to blame if she has let the neighborhood children completely take over her home.

It is possible to make children welcome-without letting them act like hoodlums.

Make A Few Simple Rules

The thing to do is to lay down a few simple rules, tell the children what the rules are, and let them know that if they don't like the rules they can play somewhere else.

Some mothers wanting their children to feel free to have their home the center of neighborhood activities don't realize the necessity for a few rules and the importance of seeing to it that they are observed.

Then in time they find the kids have taken over and begin to resent them.

But every mother is responsible for how things are run in her own home and every mother has a right to expect that the neighbors' children will abide by her rules when they are at her house.

It's no favor to children to let them act with so little consideration and respect that they quickly make nuisances of themselves.

Social Gains

Amid the turmoil of the congressional stretch drive, the Senate put its approval on a bill considerably expanding and improving the nation's social security system. The measure is a cornerstone of President Eisenhower's legislative program for 1954.

The more than 6,300,000 people now drawing benefits would get at least $5 more a month. Maximum monthly benefits for families retired or retiring in the future would be lifted from the present $168.75 to $200. And retired persons would be allowed to earn more than they can now and still draw payments. .

Time was when a program of this sort would arouse bitter partisan controversy, but not any more. The bill passed the Senate by voice vote late one night. The Republicans said nothing about socialism, and the Democrats merely wished the proposals went still further.

In this area, clearly, the President made good his promise not to disturb but to advance the "social gains."

Joke Squad

Reports from behind the Iron Curtain indicate that the Communist officials are concerned about the spread of jokes which poke fun at the party. To curb this laughter, the Commies have now created the "Joke Squad" to police Russian

Duty of the squad is to travel around the coffee houses or wherever people congregate. One of the squad will tell a funny story, with the Communist regime or some high party official as the butt of it. Other members of the squad then take down the names of any persons who laugh for later punishment.

Two Norwegians Claim They Saw Saucer Pilot

OSLO (P)-Two Norwegian women claim they not only had a close look at a flying saucer but they talked to its "dark-skinned, long-haired" pilot. Skeptical police have launched an investigation.

The two women, Mrs. Aasta Solvang and her sister Edit Jacobsen, said the saucerman popped out at them from behind some bushes last Friday near Mofjell, in northern Norway.

Their story was published yesterday by the local paper Nordlands

This was the sisters account: 'We were picking berries when suddenly a dark man with long hair - but otherwise looking very much like an ordinary human being - came out from behind some

'We were frightened at first, but the man appeared very friendly, and stepped toward us.

One of them addressed him in English, French, German, and Norwegian. "He didn't seem to understand a word." The stranger then attempted to communicate by drawing "circles and what looked like pictures of heavenly bodies" on a piece of paper. The stranger finally them to his craft, which looked like "two deep saucers sand-wiched together," about 15 feet

The mystery man opened a hatch and crawled into the disc. Moments later the craft "rose from the ground and began rotating, first slowly, then increasingly fast-peared at an "incredible speed."

R- THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT-Sedalia, Mo., Wed., Aug. 25, 1954

WASHINGTON P-The armed forces have a king-sized nationwide problem on their hands. It concerns medical care for dependents of servicemen.

A Defense Department order cutting the number of doctors in the services from about 4 per 1,000 men on active duty to 3 per 1,000 is making it hard for the Army and Navy to continue its traditional service to the families of soldiers and sailors.

The cut stemmed from a recommendation by a presidential committee in early 1953. The theory was that the services should make better use of their doctors, and if the number were cut they would be forced to.

Secretary of Defense Wilson told the armed forces to make the cut June 30, 1954, for at least a year. Actually there is only vague legal sanction for providing care for servicemen's dependents. The practice grew out of an 1884 appropriation act which said "that the medical officers of the Army and the contract surgeons shall wherever practicable, attend the families of officers and soldiers

Britain Rejects Polish Demand for Return Of Stowaway Sailor

LONDON M-Britain today rejected Poland's demand for the return of a Polish sailor who stowed away on a freighter to escape his Communist homeland and was granted asylum here.

Eighty British police rescued the seaman, 24-year-old Antoni Klimowicz, from the Polish freighter Jarosiaw Dabrowski July 31. He hid on the ship when it left Poland. Crewmen caught him before he could escape in London and were hauling him back to his homeland. The British note turned down Poland's demands for compensaion for alleged damage resulting from detention of the ship and the police action. The British also denied Polish charges of police bru-

GOP Faces Same Charges on Farm Program That It Did When It Led the 80th Congress

WASHINGTON (F) — The Republican - controlled 83rd Congress finds itself in about the same controversial spot on farm legislation as did the 80th Congress, the last time the GOP was in the driver's seat.

Democrats are sizing up a new farm program passed by the present Congress as a major issue in the fall's congressional election. They contend the program will hurt farmers.

In 1948, Democrats fired a similar charge against a GOP Congress. President Truman beat out Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the presidency and Democrats regained control of Congress. The farm vote was credited with being a major factor.

But Republican leaders predict the comparison will end there. They express confidence that farmers will approve Congress' recent action in setting up a system of flexible farm price supports to supplant war-born high, rigid price floors.

In 1948 the issue centered largely around Congress' stripping the Agriculture Department of authority to provide storage facilities for farmers' surplus crops. Farm prices tumbled and Democrats blamed the GOP.

Seeking ouster of GOP congressmen from farm states, Democrats are predicting that the new support system - passed by a somewhat reluctant Congress at insistence of President Eisenhower an agricultural depression.
